The overall objective of the Project is to provide a comprehensive aggregated data kit on a six month basis to allow better informed decision making at the European level. Globally, the objective is to provide a compilation of basic data of the various countries in Central Asia based on the best professional judgement withstanding that some of the material is not fully reliable.

Specific objectives
The specific objectives of this project are:

1. □ To provide a basic set of information with notes on sources and detailed references

1.1. □ basic geographical information on : Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan Uzbekistan, and Turkmenistan

1.2. □ Key social indicators for the same countries: such as Infant mortality ratio, Spending in education and Health (% GDP), life expectancy, gender and family data, social class and social change, crime and social control. The presentation of this information should be done in perspective with the Millennium Development Goals (MGDs) and by using EBD transition indicators.

1.3. □ Key economic indicators indicating the development over years and possible forecast

1.4. □ Overview of planned budget expenditure

1.5. □ GDP development in relation with other countries in the EU, Romania, Bulgaria, Turkey, Croatia and other NIS countries (above all Russia), as well as China and India.

1.6. □ Overview of multilateral assistance per donor (grants/loans), with a classification per sector

1.7. □ Production figures and trade per destinations, including manufacturing labour productivity, and agricultural labour productivity. An overview of planned intra Central Asia trade is requested

1.8. □ Relevant data on oil and gas production and export (past, present and future) including a map with existing and planned pipelines. The production and export figures and forecasts should be put in a table in comparison with the potential production of other major oil and gas producing countries in order to get a good understanding of the importance of Central Asia in this field, in a world context.

1.9. □ Relevant data on production from the mining sector for resources such as uranium, gold, etc.
